Description:

An evergreen Sansevieria is the ideal planting for your office space. The original herbaceous succulent was originally found only in the warm, dry climates of Africa, where it was also cultivated as a useful plant for its hemp-like plant fiber. Various cultivated forms have established themselves in our latitudes as timelessly beautiful houseplants. Especially on the windowsill, boiling boards or counters, the narrow slender plant comes into its own and captivates with its simple elegance.

With this artificial mother-in-law's tongue from Europalms, a lot of emphasis was placed on a naturalistic finish. This is particularly evident in the large, long, upright-grown leaves, whose transverse bands represent natural color gradients. Thanks to the soft-touch leaves made of EVA, the artificial plant impresses with a very good feel and at the same time has a high aging resistance.

Uncomplicated potting is possible due to the combined and tightly wrapped leaves - almost equivalent to an insertion stick. This makes the artificial plant particularly suitable for combining several plants into a large arrangement.
